STORY OF THE PLAY

A large, rugged cross is found standing in a messy alley. People passing by are shocked to see it. The cross speaks a message in an effort to express God's love and compassion, but what effect does it have? Reactions are split between two groups: those who think it is foolishness and those who are reminded of what happened 2,000 years ago. Some hear and live; others refuse to hear and die. A dramatic and inspirational play you won't soon forget. Appropriate for Easter as well as throughout the year.

SETTING

An empty alley behind the mall. Mall's backdoor is DSR. Cast members enter from this door. A light is above the door. A cross leans against a wall SL with a garbage bin to the left of it. Some odds and ends and newspaper pages are strewn all over. Graffiti is on the wall such as "Where is God?" USR is a wall, chipped in many places. This wall curves about ten feet from the cross then splits to the left and right UPS. Graffiti on wall facing audience, USL, is a skull and words: "Dead Man's Alley." Street-lamp hangs from the wall above graffiti.

SCENE 1

(AT RISE: TEEN A and TEEN B enter from SR, having exited from the mall's backdoor. Teen A walks with a strut, eyes restlessly scanning. Teen B is somewhat calmer.)

TEEN A: (Excited, grabs TEEN B's arm, points with the other) Hey, look! What's that? A cross! A cross? Here? Far out, man! C'mon, let's check that one out!

(Both half run to the cross. TEEN A immediately tries to lift it, but it's too heavy. TEEN B walks around the cross while Teen A continues his attempts.)

TEEN B: (Mystified, but scornful) It's a real cross! Why here?

TEEN A: (Laughing) Maybe somebody stole it from a church.

TEEN B: (Frowning) Yeah, that's where it belongs. You think maybe it's been put here on purpose? Just to make people think?

TEEN A: Think about a cross? Uh, forget it — I got better things to think about. Like, my date this weekend. How 'bout you? (Looks at watch)

TEEN B: (HE leans against wall next to the cross on the right side. Takes out a pack of cigarettes, stops. Thoughtfully, eyes on cross) Y'know...I'm beginning to wonder. Maybe we should think more about spiritual things. (TEEN A makes ghostlike sounds, grins at TEEN B.) I mean, the way things are going in this world it makes me wonder if I'll ever get to be an adult.

TEEN A: (Laughing nervously) You're kiddin', right? Don't scare me, old man! 'Course you'll get to be an adult; you'll live as long as you like! Hey, lighten up, man! Life's for having fun, doncha know that?

To Whom the Cross Speaks

TEEN B: (Mumbles) Yeah, guess you're right. Let's have fun.

TEEN A: I'll race you to the car!

(TEEN A sprints away and TEEN B gets ready to follow. Stops at invisible NARRATOR'S voice)

NARRATOR: (Somber) The harp and the strings, the tambourine, flute and wine are in their feasts, but they do not regard the work of the Lord. Nor consider the operation of His hands.

(TEEN B looks back at the cross, puzzled. TEEN A calls out to him.)

TEEN A: (Impatient) C'mon! The guys're waiting with the booze!

(TEEN B breaks into a half-hearted trot and follows. He stops again just before turning the corner.)

NARRATOR: (Sighs, sad) Therefore, hell has enlarged itself and opened its mouth beyond measure. Their glory, their multitude, their pomp, and he who is jubilant shall descend into it!

RICH MAN: All these decrepit buildings will have to be torn down to increase my profits. I'll build more parking arcades and that street will have to be widened.

To Whom the Cross Speaks

RICH MAN: (Continued.) Oh, what's that? (HE briskly strides to the cross and stands spread-eagled before it, stroking his chin.) This is interesting. (HE walks up to the cross, touching it briefly before taking out a handkerchief from his pocket and wiping off his hands.) I'll be darned...a real cross! Here? (Turns around with a dismal look on HIS face) For what purpose, I wonder? To draw attention. But whose? Who would waste time looking at a cross like this one? Now if this were a different kind of cross...(HIS face lights up.) Oh! Wait-a-minute, wait-a-minute here. What a brilliant idea! (Wrings hands excitedly) A gold cross! That's it! I'll make crosses like this...gold plated! I'll have a promotional blitz telling people that if they pray at a gold cross, prosperity will come their way! I'll charge $50 to pray in my gold cross shrines, and that'll bring me about two hundred thousand a year. Hey, hey...I'll even get a tax deduction! (Feverishly grabs HIS cellular phone and dials) James, bring the Rolls here. I'm in the alley behind the mall. I'll give you ten seconds! (Dials another number) Parker, get the board together for an impromptu meeting. Got a brand-new plan about a cross! A cross, stupid! Get movin', ya hear? I'll be there in fifteen...ah, there's James. Dummy, he's passing by! Hey, James! (Runs to end of alley and turns corner)

NARRATOR: Fool! This day your soul will be taken from you and then who will own the things you have hoarded? (The SOUND of a gun shot is heard, followed by gasping.)

RICH MAN: (Voice only) I got hit! Those hoodlums! (Voice breaks) James...somebody...hellepp...(Croaking)...I...I'm...dy...ing. (Last gasp)

NARRATOR: How hard it is for those who hoard wealth to enter into the Kingdom of God!
