STORY OF THE PLAY

Four honor roll students have been summoned to detention. To avoid punishment, they each come up with a preposterous excuse for their tardiness, and their wacky tales are acted out by an ensemble of performers. As one wild lie piles on top of the next, the principal gets farther away from the truth. Will he be able to figure out these bright young minds? If so, he'll have to pay close attention in detention, for he's up against a swift bunch of kids, each with a knack for making the most ridiculous stories sound entirely possible.

Attention Detention

(AT RISE: There are four desks center stage facing the audience. ADAM, JANICE, MARISSA and TREVOR are seated with their heads down. Out of nowhere, the PRINCIPAL storms in. He has a booming voice and carries a yardstick.)

PRINCIPAL: Attention detention! (All the STUDENTS snap their heads up at once. Their eyes are wide as saucers, like deer caught in the headlights.) The time is 3:45. Detention begins... (The STUDENTS inhale deeply.) ...now. (The STUDENTS exhale. The PRINCIPAL creeps around the room dangerously.) Time for roll call. (He approaches ADAM.) Desk number one, your name.

ADAM: Adam.

PRINCIPAL: Adam what?

ADAM: Sorry, sir?

PRINCIPAL: Adam what?

ADAM: Adam...and Eve?

PRINCIPAL: No, Adam. Your full name.

ADAM: It's not on your record?

PRINCIPAL: We go by first name only. Otherwise our filing cabinets would be spilling over.

ADAM: Um, okay. Adam Dinsmore, sir.

PRINCIPAL: And your middle name?

(ADAM looks to the OTHERS quizzically. They just shrug their shoulders.)

ADAM: Dennis, sir. Adam Dennis Dinsmore.

PRINCIPAL: Thank you. (Pause.) Wait a moment.

ADAM: Yes, sir?

PRINCIPAL: Your initials spell A-D-D?

ADAM: Yes, sir. They do indeed, sir. (Pause.) I'm sorry, what were we talking about?

PRINCIPAL: Never mind. (Moves on to JANICE.) Desk number two, your name.

Attention Detention

-6-

MARISSA: Marissa Dawn Jackson. You might recognize the name. My brother Kevin lived in detention.

PRINCIPAL: As a matter of fact, I do. He was quite a prankster.

MARISSA: Yes, sir.

PRINCIPAL: He tee-peed the school so many times, Charmin paid for the new chem lab.

MARISSA: That's him, sir.

PRINCIPAL: And our longest-running senior, too. It took him three years to graduate.

MARISSA: Four, actually.

PRINCIPAL: He was pretty cozy in here.

MARISSA: I'll say. I'm sitting in his desk.

PRINCIPAL: How can you tell?

MARISSA: There's a plaque with his name on it.

PRINCIPAL: That's right! The faculty chipped in for that. So what's he up to nowadays?

MARISSA: Probation. But I assure you I'm nothing like him. This is just a simple misunderstanding.

PRINCIPAL: We'll get to that later. (HE moves his attention to JANICE.) Desk number three.

JANICE: Do I hafta?

PRINCIPAL: "Hafta"? Watch your grammar, young lady.

JANICE: My grammar is fine. I get straight A's without cracking a book. I've never missed a day of school in my life. And I'm gorgeous. So do we really have to go through this charade?

PRINCIPAL: Indeed we do.

JANICE: Come on. I have good grades, good insight and good hair. Don't I deserve a "get out of jail free" card?

PRINCIPAL: There's a price to pay for poor behavior.

JANICE: I take Miss Moon's gym class. Isn't that punishment enough?

PRINCIPAL: I thought everyone liked Miss Moon.

JANICE: Are you kidding? She's a basket case. Last month during archery, she put pictures of her boyfriend on all the targets.

PRINCIPAL: I'll have a word with her about that.

Attention Detention

-7-

JANICE: Please do. They broke up and now we're learning the backstroke in a pool of her tears.

PRINCIPAL: In any event, your name.

JANICE: Janice Katherine Young. And I'm not kidding about Miss Moon. Next week we start kickboxing and I'm worried.

PRINCIPAL: (Approaches TREVOR.) Desk number four. Your name.

TREVOR: (Insolent.) You know who I am.

PRINCIPAL: We must follow the proper protocol.

TREVOR: This is stupid.

PRINCIPAL: Don't call me stupid.

TREVOR: I didn't call you stupid.

PRINCIPAL: Young man --

TREVOR: (Rolls his eyes.) Just wait till I get home. Mom will get a kick out of this.

PRINCIPAL: Don't bring her into this.

TREVOR: But, Dad!

PRINCIPAL: Don't "but, Dad" me.

TREVOR: (To the STUDENTS.) He does this all the time. Before we have dinner, roll call. Before we go to bed, roll call. I'm surprised there's not a sign-in sheet for the bathroom.

PRINCIPAL: This is not the time or place—

TREVOR: I can't believe Mom thinks your attention to detail is cute.

PRINCIPAL: (Pleased.) I have my charms.

TREVOR: Not that it doesn't drive her crazy sometimes. For a good laugh, she switches all the clues on his "TV Guide" crossword puzzle. (The STUDENTS laugh.)

PRINCIPAL: She doesn't do that.

TREVOR: Yes she does. She puts yesterday's clues with today's puzzle. Then he disappears into the study for hours. (More laughter.) He's still stuck on a twelve letter word for "I blank Lucy."

(The PRINCIPAL slams down the yardstick on TREVOR'S desk.)
