DEDICATION

To the wonderfully talented Thom Sneed, my long-time drama buddy, friend, encourager and fierce (in a good way) editor...thanks for all you did to bring this to the stage.

To the wonderfully talented cast and crew of the Oregon (Ohio) Church of the Nazarene, who gave the gift of their gut-busting comedic talent and dramatic genius.

And, most importantly, to my wife, Jill, who is always pushing me to be the best I can be. She has had her share of laughs and drama being married to me for so long. I am glad we are still sharing the stage, my love.

The Playwright, Dave Tippett

STORY OF THE PLAY

It's Christmas time, December, 1944. Long-suffering Arthur Kensington finds himself in the midst of a battle to keep his tiny station, K-M-A-S, on the air. He's planned a special holiday show with his eclectic staff of decidedly not-ready-for-prime time radio players, including a dyslexic sound man, a poetry/drama queen, and a pompous actor who has written a new radio play retelling the Nativity as a hard-boiled detective story. On top of that, everyone's hopes are dashed when an anticipated visit from the famous singing Andrews Sisters turns out to be the not-so-famous Epstein Cousins.

In the midst of all the chaos, we meet an Army hero who has lost his arm, and his self-respect through his act of cowardice. Add in an impressionable young man dreaming of war's glory, a lonely orphan boy, and a young wife whose husband is missing in action, and we realize this special show is more important than ever. Join us now as K-M-A-S Radio gets Christmas on the air and into the hearts of everyone!

ACT I
Scene 1

(AT RISE: The USO, evening, Dec. 22, 1944. A small CHOIR is singing the last strains of a lively Christmas carol. In the background, rehearsal is in full swing. SERVICE MEN are practicing a few bars of a song; energetic ORPHANS are watched by PASTOR SHIRLEY; and three actors, MARY, JOSEPH and SIMON, confer with the sound effects man, DANNY, who has his special effects laid out on a table next to him. ARTHUR is standing off to the side, his hair and suit in disarray, as well as his temperament. At his side is his assistant, KATIE, holding a clipboard and writing frantically as Arthur dictates. ANNOUNCER is also nearby. The song ends and the TWO SAMS step up to perform. They are energetic with a very vaudeville feel. Sam #1 holds a small horn.)

SAM #1: Hey there, Sam!

SAM #2: Hey there, Sam!

SAM #1: Hey, Sam. So, this is Bethlehem, eh? Any great men ever born in this little town?

SAM #2: No! Only babies! (Horn honk.) Hey, Sam!

SAM #1: Yes, Sam?

SAM #2: What do you think of that twenty-foot fence your neighbor put up behind the stable?

SAM #1: That twenty-foot fence my neighbor put up behind the stable? I can't get over it! (Horn honk.)

(Like EVERYONE else, ARTHUR has been groaning, shaking his head and rolling his eyes at each bad joke. He starts to give the SAMS the "wind up" sign.)

SAM #1: (Ignoring ARTHUR.) Oh, this is terrible! Here we are lost in the expanse of this desert and cannot find our way home. This is terrible. Lost, lost, probably forever. My wife and I are such inseparable companions.

SAM #2: Yeah ... my wife never lets me out of her sight, either! (Horn honk.)

(ARTHUR is giving the "one more" sign.)

SAM #1: (Frustrated at being hurried.) Uh, er, believe it or not, Officer Sam, I'm hunting for a parking space!

SAM #2: But you're not driving a camel!

SAM #1: Well, I was. It's in the parking place I'm looking for!
(Horn honk.)

(EVERYONE looks to ARTHUR who grabs the clipboard from KATIE and starts rummaging through the pages.)

ARTHUR: OK, OK, enough! It's a good thing we were NOT on the air, as that was pathetic! All right, let's review. (Refers to clipboard.) Singers! You were so-so, but please, give me some more energy and umph! Soldiers! You guys need to really sell the patriotic stuff, you know? We're trying to sell war bonds here (Quieter.) and air time (Louder.) so give your numbers that extra, er, uh—

KATIE: (Aside to HIM.) Umph.

ARTHUR: Umph! Right. A-hem. Come on now. This is our Christmas show, and not some vaudeville act, got it?!

SAM & SAM: Hey!

ARTHUR: Ohhh, you know what I mean! (Tries to be more positive.) Look, everyone, we have only two more days until Christmas Eve and show time. This is a huge chance to put our little community, and our little radio station, on the map. I know we can do it! We've got all the elements of success. There's you soldier boys to give it all that good old American patriotic spirit. We've got these, er, lovely orphans Pastor Shirley has brought in, raising money for their orphanage. And this giving away three books of gas-rationing coupons to get sponsors is, if I do say so myself, a stroke of genius! (EVERYONE just stares at HIM.) Come on, everyone, liven up! (Still nothing.) And don't forget we've definitely got the Andrews Sisters coming. (EVERYONE now applauds.) Now, I KNOW we can get this thing together, right?

(EVERYONE stares blankly at ARTHUR, so behind his back, KATIE prompts them all to nod in agreement, which they do.)

K-M-A-S Radio, Christmas on the Homefront

ARTHUR: (Cont.) Swell!! All right , we'll work on the second half of the show in a minute. Remember, your station manager — that's me — and America — well, at least as far over as Pine Ridge — is counting on you!

(Again, EVERYONE just stares blankly at ARTHUR, so behind his back, KATIE prompts them all to nod in agreement again.)

ARTHUR: (Cont.) Swell! OK, let's get back to it after a short break.

(The ORPHANS exit, as do most of the OTHERS. ARTHUR starts to move to stage right when SIMON runs towards him waving a script.)

SIMON: Mr. Kensington. Mr. Kensington! Mr. Kensington, did you get a chance to read my script for the Christmas show?

ARTHUR: (Sigh.) Yes, Simon. Very, uh, interesting and all, but —

SIMON: I modeled it after my own character on my show — (Dramatically.) Harry Gamp, Private Eye!

ARTHUR: Yes, Simon, I know, but —

SIMON: Didn't you think it was brilliant of me to take the tired old story of Mary and Joseph and the wise men and on and on, and make it all a thrilling radio detective mystery?!

ARTHUR: Oh, yeah, brilliant. That's the word.

SIMON: You know, sir, people will really remember the Christmas story after they hear it told like this!

ARTHUR: Oh, no doubt about it, Simon, but —

SIMON: And it might get the attention of those sponsors you've been trying to lure.

ARTHUR: (Skeptical.) How?!

SIMON: Well, sir, they'll see K-M-A-S as a place that can draw listeners with creative entertainment. With shows that make people think. With a new approach to old stories.

ARTHUR: (Pretending to agree.) Oh yeah, Simon. And when they hear the Christmas story being told like it is the back page of some pulp magazine, they'll really love us! N-O, no! (Starts to walk away.)
